

CZAR'S SHIPS MAKE ANOTHER EFFORT TO LEAVE PORT ARTHUR

Russians Forced Back by the Terrific Japanese Fire

Fleet is in Battered and Very Badly Crippled Condition

Official Report of Russian Casualties—Advancing Again on Liao Yang—Urio a Hero—St. Petersburg is Now Expecting the Fall of Port Arthur London, Aug. 16.—Goaded on by despair, the battered and shell-torn remnants of the Russian Port Arthur fleet which returned to the Port after a terrific sea fight of last Wednesday, under the cover of darkness, early today made a desperate attempt to pass the Japanese squadron lying outside the harbor and reach safety and liberty. It is not expected they can do it. The Russian ships are in no condition to withstand heavy fire. The Diana, so far as known, is in excellent shape. The Retvisan, however, was so severely damaged in the last fight that she lists heavily to one side, the battleship Pobieda has lost two of her masts and her fighting equipment is disabled. The Peresviet has not a mast left while the Poitava is in little better shape. Seven destroyers which complete the squadron, are all badly damaged, and are in better condition for dry docking than for fighting. If they escape they will limp to some neutral port and dismantled.

Squadron Forced Back.
Chefoo, Aug. 16.—Word has reached here that the Russian squadron, which made a sortie from Port Arthur this morning, has returned to the Port. They could not brave the Japanese fire.

Conditions Desperate.
Rome, Aug. 16.—The commander of the Italian far Eastern squadron telegraphs today that the latest Japanese bombardment of Port Arthur did enormous damage. General Stoessel's headquarters was among the buildings destroyed. Conditions at Port Arthur, he adds are desperate. Nearly all the horses in the beleaguered city have been slaughtered for food.

England's Attitude.
London, Aug. 16.—Your correspondent learns today from diplomatic source that England has taken an uncompromising attitude toward the action of the Russian warships in sinking the steamer, Knight Commander. In her last note to Russia, Great Britain informed the St. Petersburg officials that they must pay damages for the sinking of the Knight Commander. If this is refused, England will consider her honor flouted and will resort to extreme measures. Also if there is a repetition of the sinking of a British ship, British cruisers will be ordered to exact reparation from the offending warships.

Urio in the Fight.
London, Aug. 16.—Advices from Tokyo today give additional details of Admiral Kamimura's fight with the Russian Vladivostok squadron which resulted in the loss of the Russian ship Rurik. Details are taken from a fuller official report sent to the Mikado by the Japanese admiral. The Rurik, it appears, was sunk by two protected cruisers under command of Rear Admiral Urio, the Annapolis naval academy graduate.

The Land Attack.
London, Aug. 16.—The Express correspondent at Chefoo telegraphs under date of Monday that for several days the Japanese land attack on Port Arthur has been going forward. The heights of Takushan, from which a temporary retirement was made, were stormed and taken at the point of the bayonet. These hills command the eastern bastions. Shalikushan and Yeanchang were also captured, and on the western side the range of hills overlooking the West Port are in the hands of the Japanese. A terrific artillery bombardment has been going on for a week.

Advance in Liao Yang.
London, Aug. 16.—Dispatches received from Liao Yang state that the Japanese under General Kuroki, are again advancing on the Russian outposts and continual picket skirmishing is going on. The outposts have met near Hung-miatgu and Russian force has been driven back.

Another Naval Battle.
Chefoo, Aug. 16.—Advices were received here today that the Russian warships which were at Port Arthur, made a sortie early this morning and are now being pursued by the Japanese. A severe naval engagement is expected. The vessels of the Japanese fleet kept further away from Port Arthur than usual last night as the commanders feared a torpedo attack by the Russians in the darkness. The Russians noticing this, thought they could escape. It is believed that the battle will drift to the vicinity of Chefoo.

Russian Casualties.
St. Petersburg, Aug. 16.—Official reports were received here today from Port Arthur giving the number of casualties there between Aug. 8 and 10, when the Japanese troops made another desperate effort to capture the Port. The reports show that seven Russian officers and 248 men were killed, 35 officers and 1,533 men were wounded, and one officer and 83 men are missing.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 16.—The expectation here is that Port Arthur will fall at any moment. Especial significance is attached to the fact that Lieutenant General Stoessel's wife and children went to Chefoo on board the Ryshtelni.

A dispatch from Liao Yang indicates a belief in the retirement further north of the Russian army. The dispatch says that the Russo-Chinese bank at Liao Yang is preparing to remove to Talinghsien, and that the bank at Mukden is apparently about to close. The authorities, the dispatch says, have heard that 1,200 Chinese bandits are preparing to sack Liao Yang as soon as it is evacuated by the Russians. The heavy rains have converted the country far and wide into a swamp. The troops at Anshanshan, from which a dispatch concludes, paraded on Aug. 14, on account of the birth of an heir to the Russian throne.

GENERAL STOESELL.
(In Command at Port Arthur.)

The exact whereabouts of the Port Arthur battleships is still a mystery on which hinges Russian naval fortunes in the far east. Telegrams reporting them back to Port Arthur have not been confirmed up to this hour. It is apparent that Vice Admiral Togo either cannot or will not say where they have gone. The admiralty officials declare they do not know, but they refuse to believe that out of five battleships not a single one managed to break through to Vladivostok.

Vice Admiral Togo's report of his own damage mentions only a few ships, which is believed to indicate that the others have not rejoined his fleet. It is more than probable that Admiral Withoff before going out fixed a rendezvous to which the vessels would proceed if separated, and it is likewise more than probable that this rendezvous was anywhere except at Port Arthur, the most likely point being between Shanghai and Kiusiu (the most southerly of the three principal islands of Japan), which is on the circular route to Vladivostok. The Czarvitch was evidently heading for this point when she was compelled by the damages she sustained to turn aside and enter Tsingtau.

It is reported that Viceroy Alexieff has left Mukden hurriedly for Vladivostok on receipt of news that the illness of Vice Admiral Bezobrazoff had taken a serious turn and that the admiral was not expected to recover.

INDIANOLA

Postoffice Which Figured in the Race
Troubles Reduced to Fourth Class

Washington, Aug. 16.—The postoffice at Indianola, Miss., which figured conspicuously last year in race troubles on account of a negro postmaster, Mrs. Minnie Cox, and which was closed for months by order of the president, has been reduced from a presidential office to the fourth class. The postoffice department explains that this action was due to the receipts of the office for the fiscal year falling below the minimum amount established for presidential offices and not to any desire of the department to further show its disapproval of the course taken by certain citizens of the town toward Mrs. Cox.

DEMOCRATIC

Leaders Reach An Understanding Regarding the Campaign in New York State.

New York, Aug. 16.—At a conference between Chairman Cord Meyer of the New York Democratic state committee and Delancey Nicoll, vice chairman of the national committee, an understanding was reached regarding the New York state campaign. It was decided that the national committee would not interfere with the state committee in the state and neither the national nor the state committee will take up any work in New York city and Brooklyn, where the campaign will be conducted by the regular Democratic organization. The Democratic national managers say they are convinced that the situation in Greater New York is in the best possible shape for a larger vote and larger majorities than ever before.

JURY

After Deliberating Eight Minutes Found Will Cato, Guilty.

Statesboro, Ga., Aug. 16.—The jury in the case of the state vs. Will Cato, one of the negroes charged with the murder of Henry Hodges and family, returned a verdict of guilty, after being out eight minutes. Rev. H. A. Hodges of Texas, a brother of Henry Hodges, who with his wife and three children was murdered, opened court with prayer. He prayed for the spirit of a sound mind, a Godly judgment and unbiased verdict, and for the observance of the laws. He pleaded that the people stand by the court in its action. The following negro suspects were in the court room under military guard: Will Cato, Paul Reed, Will Rainey, Handy Bell, Dave Young, Elias Young, A. J. Gaines, David Bennett, Philip Decasse, Ben Pendennis, Hattie Reed, Ophelia Cato, Louis Cooper. All the men are supposed to belong to the "Before Day club."

Parker's Movements.
Esopus, N. Y., Aug. 16.—Judge Parker arrived at Rosemont from Winnsboro lodge with Mrs. Parker and his brother, Fred H. Parker. All along the nine mile drive from the club quarters to the railroad at Big Indian the keenest interest was exhibited by the natives and cottagers in the Democratic candidate. He was repeatedly cheered.

Fatal Quarrel.
Chicago, Aug. 16.—William Madden, 22, was shot and killed in a quarrel with George L. Smitherman, conductor on a street railway cable line. The shooting was the direct result, the police say, of remarks made to Smitherman by Madden who chided Smitherman for not wearing a union button.

RESCUED 600 MEN

Washington, Aug. 16.—The Japanese legation received a dispatch from the foreign office at Tokio saying that Admiral Kamimura's reports that at dawn on August 14 his squadron discovered the three vessels of the Vladivostok squadron off the southeastern coast of Korea, steaming southward. The Russian vessels, sighting the Japanese squadron, attempted to escape northward, but were prevented and fighting commenced at 5:23 a. m. All the enemy's ships caught fire several times by reason of the Japanese shells and suffered badly, especially the Rurik. Eventually the Russians fled at full speed northward, leaving behind the Rurik, which afterward sunk. Thereupon the whole Japanese squadron began the rescue of the drowning Russians and picked up about 600.

ARKANSAS HAS A SENSATION

As the Parties to the Alleged Fraud
Are All Very Prominent People.

Little Rock, Ark., Aug. 16.—The biggest sensation ever sprung in this state has just been developed. Several life insurance companies have garnished the German National bank for funds alleged to be in the bank to the credit of Mrs. Ethel Lisette of Searcy, whose husband was thought to be dead. The companies have entered suit for the return of the money paid Mrs. Lightle on the life of her husband.

Several months ago the people were horrified to hear that Dr. R. G. Lightle, had been burned to a crisp in his stable. Fragments of bones were recovered, the funeral being the largest witnessed in Searcy for years. Mr. Lightle carried $21,000 insurance which was paid to his widow. The companies, were as follows: New York Life, $11,000; Fidelity Mutual, $5,000; Mutual Life of New York, $1,000; A. O. U. W., $2,000; Metropolitan, $2,000.

The identity of the body was established to the satisfaction of everybody and the insurance was paid last May. Several days ago S. M. Powell, general agent of the Metropolitan Life company, came in possession of rumors which led him to make a thorough investigation. It was stated that the bones found in the stable were from the body of a man named Pitts.

C. E. Cox, A. R. Chichester, W. E. King and J. A. Chandler, opened the grave and found the coffin empty. Pitts body had been stolen. Corroborative facts were obtained, and the Metropolitan attached funds supposed to be in the bank to the credit of Mrs. Lightle. The other companies interested took similar action. Mrs. Lightle arrived in Little Rock and held a conference with several officials of the insurance companies, and it is reliably stated that she has agreed to return the money and that there will be no criminal prosecution.

Mrs. Lightle stated that she did not know that her husband was alive until a few days ago, and believed all along that he had perished May 6. The officials of the insurance companies have knowledge of Dr. Lightle's whereabouts, but refuse to disclose it.

Insurance officials who unearthed the alleged fraud stated that they are in possession of positive proof exonerating Mrs. Lightle. The first knowledge she had that her husband was not dead was a few days ago when the two men who took part in the conspiracy called upon her for their share of the insurance money. They told her for the first time that her husband was alive and told her where to send the money. The division of the money was the cause of the exposure.

NEGRO PROPHET PROVED FALSE AT WILMINGTON

Man's Speech So Frightened the People

That Colored Population Left Town and
Consequently Labor Is Scarce
Today.

Norfolk, Aug. 16.—A false prophet prophesied the fall of Wilmington, N. C., and that city is in distress for want of laborers for her vineyards. The name of the false prophet is George W. Richardson, a negro, of New Bern, a neighboring town to Wilmington. He prophesied the burning of Wilmington yesterday by fire from heaven. So powerful was his speech that many of the colored inhabitants of the city took flight not even looking back, a few of them not halting until they reached this city. Those who arrived here were surprised when told today that Wilmington had not been burned. The police of Wilmington are looking for the false prophet today.

FAIRBANKS

Is to Make a Speaking Tour in Behalf of the Republican Ticket

Chicago, Aug. 16.—That Senator Fairbanks, the Republican vice presidential candidate, will participate at most continuously in the presidential campaign and tour the country in behalf of the ticket of which he is a component part, was made known as the result of a visit made by him to Republican headquarters in this city. The senator was in consultation during the greater part of the time between his arrival and departure with Republican leaders. Senator Fairbanks has entered into an engagement to open the Kansas state campaign at Marion in that state on Sept. 1, and there are calls for him for earlier dates in Vermont.

Miners' Motion Overruled.
Springfield, Ill., Aug. 16.—Judge Humphrey, in the federal court, overruled the motion of the striking miners and officers of miners' unions to dissolve the temporary injunction which he had issued restricting the strikers or officers of miners' unions from picketing the Zeigler Coal company's property, or in any manner interfering with the operation of the mine. In overruling the motion, Judge Humphrey said: "Men that want to work have a perfect right to do so and I will see that they are protected in that right in this district."

Emperor Nicholas's Successor.
St. Petersburg, Aug. 16.—Emperor Nicholas has issued a manifesto determining the order of succession to the throne. In the event of the emperor dying before the czarvitch attains his majority, the emperor's brother, Grand Duke Michael, is to become regent, the empress assuming the guardianship of the czarvitch.

VETERANS

To the Number 25,000
Marched in Parade
Today.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 16.—Today, probably for the last time, the streets of Boston resounded with the tread of veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic. Between the thousands of fluttering flags and miles of bunting, through streets literally packed with spectators, marched over 25,000 of the remnants of that great army of men, who nearly a half century ago, fought to preserve the Union. Out of consideration for the advanced years of the veterans, the route of the parade was only two miles long.

CHINESE

Demand From Japanese Government
the Return of the Russian Vessel.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 16.—The presentation of a strongly worded Russian note to the Peking government, demanding an explanation of the Ryshtelni incident, coupled with a demand for the restoration of the destroyer, as foreshadowed by the protest sent to Japan and the powers, shows that Russia is apparently determined to obtain satisfaction for the affront. It is believed here that the least Japan can do is to surrender the destroyer unless she wishes to place herself on record as jettisoning the most categorical provisions of international law with the possibilities of ultimate complications.

Chinese Act.
Washington, Aug. 16.—Mr. Conger, the American minister at Peking, called the state department as follows: "The Russian minister sent to the Chinese government a strong note charging it with complicity in the Ryshtelni affair, charging the Chinese with complicity with cowardice and treason, and demanding a full explanation, the restoration of the destroyer and severe punishment of the commander. The Chinese government demanded from the Japanese the restoration of the destroyer."

In Hands of Germans.
Tsingtau, Aug. 16.—The Russian battleship Czarvitch and three torpedo-boat destroyers are now in the hands of the local German government for repairs, but it is improbable that the vessels will fight again in this war.

Cruiser Askold Docked.
London, Aug. 16.—A dispatch to London from Shanghai says that the cruiser Askold has gone into dock and a torpedo-boat destroyer, the Grozovoi, is being dismantled.

But Accused Man Was Taken
Out of Town.

MUNCIE PEOPLE ARE AROUSED

Murder Occurred Just Four Blocks
From Scene of a Tragedy on July 2.

Muncie, Ind., Aug. 16.—Henry H. Stiver, a building contractor of this city was stabbed to death late yesterday afternoon by a peddler, who gave his name as D. E. Lowenstein.

Last evening a mob assailed the jail and demanded the life of the prisoner. While the mob was parleying with Sheriff Swain the police slipped the prisoner out and drove away with him in a buggy. A part of the mob followed on foot, but was soon distanced. The police took the prisoner to Yorktown, where he was placed on a traction car and taken to the jail at Anderson. There was talk of going to Anderson, when the police dispersed the mob. Some of the leaders were held, but later released.

Lowenstein went to the home of Mrs. John Langenbach, in Congreville, a suburb, and offered to sell her some salvage for her son, who has typhoid fever. The peddler became insulting and Mrs. Langenbach called her brother, Henry Stiver. Stiver ordered the man away. Words followed and the peddler dared Stiver into the street. Stiver went, and Lowenstein, drawing a knife, plunged it into the victim's neck. Lowenstein ran and Stiver staggered 30 feet to a tree, where he fell and expired.

Detectives Carey and Benhow found a bloody knife in Lowenstein's pocket. He fought to get away. He says he has been a peddler for 12 years and has no home.

On the night of July 2 Edward Zimmerman was murdered just four blocks from the scene of Stiver's murder. Samuel Sharp is now in prison for the Zimmerman murder, and Henry and James Eley await trial on the same charge.

Missouri's Farmer King.
David Rankin of Tarkio, Missouri's farmer king, was given a handsome leather couch by some of his employees on his seventy-ninth birthday, which arrived the other day. "Boys," said the vigorous old man, "I've got a lot of these things in the house, but I never have time to use them." Although so near an octogenarian, Mr. Rankin drives day after day over his 23,000 acres, telling his men how to do things and seeing that they mind. He is still as tough as a pine knot and seems good for many years yet.

Man Was Found With Head Crushed—
No Arrest Had Previously
Been Made

Ironton, O., Aug. 16.—Mrs. Margaret Gindelsparger was arrested at Hanging Rock, charged with the murder of her husband in Bucksport township, Ross county, in 1895. The woman denies her guilt. She was taken to Ross county to be given a preliminary hearing. This is the first arrest ever made for the murder.

Gindelsparger, who was an old soldier and a wealthy German farmer, married Miss Margaret Cook of Hanging Rock, in September, 1895, and was murdered the following summer. Mrs. Gindelsparger's story is that about 9 o'clock on the night he was murdered, after she and Gindelsparger had retired, two men called her husband out. Awakening in the morning, Gindelsparger was absent, and searching for him she found him in the hog lot with his head crushed.

MESSANGER DISCIPLINE

New Jersey Manager's Plan of Reforming His Boys.

BETTER PAY IF THEY OBEY RULES

John F. Coogan of Newark Adopts Plan to Stop Novel Reading, Cigarette Smoking, Etc.—Co-operative Arrangement That Already Has Worked a Manifest Reform.

Newark (N. J.) business men are thinking of voting a medal to Local Manager John F. Coogan of the Postal Telegraph company or at least of recommending him as worthy of the proposed benefits of the Carnegie hero fund, says the New York World. They are convinced that Coogan is not only a hero, but also a genius.

Coogan directs the energies of some thirty boys who deliver messages that come over the wire to Newark residents. Once upon a time Coogan was champion batsman of the Eastern Baseball league, and he is thankful for the rigid discipline he was then placed under. He has endeavored to follow the same methods in his business life, but for years he was frustrated because of the seeming impossibility of drilling his staff of messenger boys into a recognition of disciplinary efforts.

Coogan fancied Newark boys to be the same as boys are everywhere. "Rush" messages were always to them of less importance than to discover by reading to the end of the story how "Butts, the boy detective," got the drop on Scar Seamed Sam, the sentimental sailor, and saved the fortune for Little Lady Lucy, the beautiful waif.

It was also in keeping with the messenger boy's code of ethics to smoke a cigarette before he answered a hurry call.

Manager Coogan studied the problem of the reformation of the messenger boy. He tried discharging them, but this brought only temporary relief, as the newcomers soon fell into the easy habits of their predecessors. After years of study Coogan has evolved the scheme that has branded him as being of the stuff heroes are made of. He put his plan into effect a few days ago, and the change he has wrought, even in a brief time, has been wonderful.

In effect he has divorced the boy from the novel, caused him to look upon the "paper smoke" with loathing and turn his head away in honest horror at the sight of a colored boy with a couple of dice in his hand.

He called his thirty boys together and said:

"Boys, I have come to the conclusion that we can get along much better if we adopt a little co-operative plan I have in mind. That means that we should work to help each other. Now, I am authorized by the company to promise you all an increase of pay. Some of you will get $1, some $2 and some $3 a month more than you are now getting. Maybe you will all get the $3. It will depend upon yourselves. "In order to become entitled to this increase you will have to promise me these things: During the next six months you will not smoke cigarettes nor read dime novels during business hours; you must promise not to curse or swear, gamble with dice or in any other form and deliver your messages promptly. If you do all these things I will agree that the company shall pay for your uniforms and give you some more money."

The proposition came as a surprise. It tickled the boys. Every one of them solemnly subscribed to the promises exacted. They also willingly agreed to forfeit certain portions of their expected raise for each fall from grace, and the new order of things was at once established. The success of the plan of Coogan has thus far been complete.

"The change produced in my boys is wonderful," he said but recently. "They have entered heartily into the spirit of the thing, and they are adhering strictly to the conditions. I made it plain to them that I did not seek to make saints of them, but merely to engage with them in a plain business proposition for our mutual benefit. There has not been a serious breach committed as yet, and I believe the boys will become so accustomed to the change that the benefit to them in a moral sense will be far greater than the gain they will receive in their pay."

Football Star a Shoemaker.

Young Tom, or "Blondy," Graydon, star football player, who ended his career at Harvard last year shortly after eloping with Miss Beryl Whitney of Boston, has given Cincinnati society a new topic of conversation, says the New York World. When he returned from college he received $25,000 as part of his inheritance. Instead of "blowing" this in the merry round of society he invested it in the shoe manufacturing business. Daily now he can be seen arrayed in long overalls and grumpy shirt sitting at a bench with half a hundred other workmen tapping pegs into shoes. He says he is determined to understand his business from the cellar to the roof, as that is the surest way to succeed in it.

Naming Russian Children.

The Russian peasants are beginning to name their children after the oft mentioned towns in the seat of war. The name Arthur was very rare up to the present year. Now it is all the rage. One child was baptized Vladivostok, another Retzivan, and so on.

CHILDISH DEFORMITIES.

Things Which, If Neglected, Mean Large Expenditure Later On.

No one used to mind when the baby sucked its thumb, except perhaps an admiring relative, who would exclaim dotingly, "How cunning!" as she watched the baby sleeping, with its little pink digit stopped in its rosy mouth. But as the child grew up it was a difficult matter to break it of the habit. The little one would even hide in corners to indulge in prolonged sucks, only to be ferreted out with the stern reproof, "Sucking that thumb again!" But the reproof came rather late. As a result, the child, now grown up, has two of the homeliest thumbs any one would care to see and a badly shaped upper arch of teeth, which dentists say was caused originally by that infantile sucking habit and which it has taken a small fortune to straighten out very imperfectly.

Little Jessie was pushed forward in school like a small hothouse vegetable.

"SUCKING THAT THUMB AGAIN!"

The poor child studied when she should have been playing in the open air. In her nervousness she bit her nails to the quick. But that wasn't so bad as another nervous habit she formed, that of biting unmercifully her under lip. She gnawed it and chewed it and sucked portions of it away in the corners of her mouth while she was puzzling over difficult mathematical problems, until, in a year or so, the lip became as coarse and thick as anything continually irritated and massaged would become. When she had grown into young ladyhood and was old enough to care, Jessie was told it would take a small fortune to remove this one unsightly spot in her otherwise attractive face.

In very much the same manner little Mary used to press her tongue against her upper teeth, with the result that she pushed them outward. This gave her what the dentists call "squirrel mouth."

Small John, who was allowed to be a mouth breather, also had a dentist's bill to face as he grew older. In his case the upper arch had been narrowed so that the lower teeth stuck beyond it. Also, thanks to this wrong habit of breathing, due to enlarged tonsils, he caught every disease going, including periodical attacks of tonsillitis.

In every case cited the expense incurred and the pain suffered by these children as they grew up were due to their parents' lack of vigilance and foresight.

THE CHINA COLLECTOR.

How She May Arrange to Advantage Her Cherished Pieces.

Very often women collectors have many dozens of beautiful plates, but do not know how to arrange them artistically so that they will show to the best advantage.

The picture shows one scheme which was adopted by a woman who had been collecting for some time blue and white antique pottery and china.

The ornament on which they are placed is of whitewood and consists of four shelves supported by brackets at the sides. The top shelves are narrower than the bottom ones. Between the lowest shelf and the mantel there is a mirror which reflects the daintier pieces of china placed upon it. The walls are of a buff shade, which goes beautifully with deep blue, and the furniture in the room is of the antique colonial type, to harmonize with the quaint china.

R. DE LA BAUME.

GREAT COAL MINE FIRE

Extraordinary Effort to Extinguish One in Pennsylvania.

SCIENTIFIC METHODS ADOPTED.

A Mixture of Calm and Water to Be Used For the Quenching of a Fire That Has Been Burning in Anthracite Coal Mine For the Past Fifty Years.

A systematic effort to extinguish the greatest mine fire in the anthracite coal region was recently commenced by a coal company which owns the Greenwood mine near Tamaqua, Pa., says the Wilkesbarre correspondent of the New York Post. The mine has been on fire for the past fifty years, and in all that time has not been worked. It still contains, so the mining experts calculate, millions of tons of fine coal, chiefly in the Mammoth vein, which in this portion of the region is from thirty to sixty feet thick, and it is for this wealth of coal that the company has started a fight which it is estimated will cost $1,000,000 and will take two years to win. Preparations to fight the fire have been under way for a year, following a careful survey of the workings, the extent of the fire and the possibility of putting it out. All previous efforts have been confined to a spasmodic flooding of the burning portion, which has not been effective.

The mining officials have discovered that the fire is raging in the loose coal above the water level, that the great pillars of the Mammoth vein are still standing undamaged and that all the lower veins are intact, the millions of gallons of water which have from time to time been poured into the mine having saved the coal despite the fact that it had no other effect upon the fire than confining it to a certain portion of the mine.

The fight will be conducted from the mountain top above the highest levels of the workings, and not far from the spot where it is believed the fire started fifty years ago, when some timbers were ignited by a miner's lamp or the ignition of a gas feeder.

A mixture of calm and water will be the fire fighting agent. This not only smothers the fire wherever it reaches it, but hardens into a mass almost as solid as coal, and forms a pillar which prevents the workings caving. It will have the valuable effect in this case of extinguishing the fire and filling up the fire eaten workings so that the adjoining pillars, which have supported these workings, may be removed. The company will thus gain great quantities of coal which could not otherwise be touched.

Four 100 horsepower boilers have been erected on the banks of the Schuylkill river and will operate two mammoth duplex pumps, which will pour into the mine 1,728,000 gallons of water every day. This water will be carried 1,600 feet in ten inch pipes from the river to the top of the mountain. There it will be turned into big troughs and mixed with immense quantities of the calm, which will be hauled by train from the Hauto culm banks six miles away. The mixed culm and water will then be run down deep shoots into the burning workings.

At the same time, at a number of points over the fire, bore holes will be drilled from the surface. These will not only serve to locate the fire, but will also draw off the gases formed by the burning coal, which have been in such volume that they have held the water back from the fire.

As one working after another is flushed with the culm and the fire extinguished the long chutes down which the culm and water are washed will be moved to another working, and the fire will in this manner be slowly but surely smothered. At the same time barriers will be built in the mine to prevent the fire spreading to untouched portions. These barriers have been built from time to time, and many of them are still serviceable.

When the fire is all out and the mine again ready to be worked the company will erect one of the largest breakers in the region, and the breaker and mine will give employment to over a thousand men and boys.

Promise of Big Chestnut Crop.

"Next fall will see the biggest chestnut crop ever made," said H. J. McGuffin, who travels over the country inspecting the chestnut trees. He is a hat drummer, but chestnuts are his favorite of all the nuts which grow in the forests, says the Louisville Courier Journal. "My home is in New York state, and I have traveled over it in a buggy during the past few weeks," he said. "The chestnut trees are loaded with burrs, and I never saw such a fine chance for a magnificent yield of nuts. I am foolishly fond of chestnuts and have been since my boyhood. Every year I buy a large quantity, and toward the end of the winter it is a race between me and the worms to see which will get the last one of the lot."

Weird Son Veils.

Young women of the summer colony at Newport, R. I., have introduced a new effect on the tennis courts at the Casino, says the New York Journal. It is a veil very like those worn by Turkish women, covering the lower part of the face, with holes through which to look. This veil is designed to prevent tan and freckles, and it serves its purpose very well, although there are some who maintain that it prevents free breathing and as a consequence is not conducive to endurance or to health.

RICH BOOTY ON SEAS.

American Goods For Japan and Russia Worth $10,500,000.

CONTRABAND LIABLE TO SEIZURE

Food Supplies, Medicines, Rifles and Other Articles Shipped by American Firms Are on the Way to the Belligerents in the Far East—Great Part For Japan.

America at this moment has upon the high seas, consigned to Japan, $7,000,000 in goods which, in part or in whole, are liable to seizure as contraband of war. Consigned to Russia, merchants of the United States have at sea goods of like nature and of about half the value of those en route for Japan, says the New York Herald.

Although it is supposed that a considerable business is done in munitions of war, the experience of the trade has been so ample that the lesson of secrecy has been well learned. Notwithstanding it is known that the armies of several nations have been equipped with American arms, the export records of this country do not show that any arms ever left our ports.

The Russian government has been informed that 100 packages of sewing machines shipped by the steamship Empress of India from Vancouver on July 25 are in fact rifles from a Connecticut arms factory. A shipment of this size, however, is regarded only as a sample lot, but it has taken a tortuous and what would appear to be an expensive route. Being brought to New Haven it was sent in a schooner to Hartford, whence it was rebilled and sent by rail to Buffalo. It was then reshipped to Duluth by water, rebilled there to Fargo, rebilled again to Dominion City, Manitoba, where it reached the Canadian Pacific railroad. It finally was delivered in a warehouse in Vancouver. There it was rebilled and the packages remarked and put on board ship for its actual destination.

The trade on the Pacific is chiefly with Japan and concerns articles, the use of which for war purposes scarcely can be denied. It includes grain, flour, mules, chemicals, machinery, railway supplies, leather, electric appliances, and, in small quantities, firearms. The locks and magazines of the rifles went in one ship, the stocks and barrels in another, and each was billed as machinery. But they were consigned to the same house in Yokohama.

A medical supply house in New Brunswick is busy night and day filling orders for silk and catgut ligatures, which are packed under a distinctive label. Another medical supply house of Philadelphia, whose preparations are chiefly compressed in tablets, has supplied great quantities of its goods. They were sent largely to England for reshipment.

Another firm of manufacturing chemists of Philadelphia whose preparations are standard the world over has furnished enormous quantities of sulphate of quinine. One shipment of this article is 1,000 pounds gross. Among the important items appearing in these invoices are 374 packages of surgical instruments worth about $200 a set, shipped on the Mesaba July 23. Also 300 cases of antiseptic bandages and 100 packages of antiseptic sponges, via Tibury docks, the departure port of the Peninsular and Oriental ships from London.

The greatest stores of this class of goods going to the east issues, however, from a Detroit drug house, which has branches in Australia and agencies in all the east. All the visible supply of camphor in this country has been taken up for shipment to the east, and much of it is on its way.

In New York city a Broad street house is intrusted with the confidential business of the Russian government, and it extends its supervision over this country and Canada, and through its many agencies keeps trace of every foreign shipment that looks suspicious.

IMITATORS OF IGORROTES.

Jealous Exhibitors In Scant Attire Feasted on Sausage.

Failing to rival the Igorrotes in popularity and ignored by the visitors to the Louisiana Purchase exposition, who hurry to the "dog eaters" for their first view, several world's fair exhibitors, together with some St. Louis men about town and visiting manufacturers, recently gave an Igorrote breakfast at the Missouri Athletic club, at which the lack of clothing was peculiarly Igorrotesque and the food was Americanized dog sausage, says a St. Louis special to the New York World. The breakfast was in the Turkish bath department of the club. After coming from a swim in the pool a dozen towel clad men sat at a table and consumed sausages, beer and cocktails until their taste for the untrammeled life of the savage had been satisfied.

How Ta-ra-ra Boom Fooled Russians.

A landed proprietor of the government of Ufa, Russia, tells this story, says the New York Globe: "A typical German trickster arrived at our village of Anastasevka on April 12 and announced that the first Japanese prisoner was coming along in an iron box and that if the mir (communal council) voted a sum of 2 rubles the peasant would be allowed to hear him squeal for mercy and afterward sing his national war song. The mir apparently voted the money, for the performance was in full progress outside of the state public house when I arrived. On a table in the roadway was a small box, from a trumpet affixed to which issued in good but squeaky English the famous 'Ta-ra-ra-boom-de-ay.'"

J., and Ocean City, Md., on Thursday, August 18, 1904.

Atlantic City, N. J., the most popular of the hundred or more resorts along the Atlantic Coast, is pronounced the finest watering place in the world. This great American Seashore Resort has kept pace with the times and prospered. The hotels have grown in number and size. Prosperity and popularity are with it.

The surf bathing which has made Atlantic City famous is one of the wonders of the world. The sight during bathing hours defies description; men, women and children in bathing costumes of varied hues form a picture to be seen only at Atlantic City.

Aside from the seaside features, Atlantic City has amusements of every kind. Great iron piers extend hundreds of feet into the ocean. Each pier has its summer theater and band stands, and for a nominal price one can enjoy the comfortable chairs of the pier and listen to the music of the bands throughout the entire day, if he so will it.

The proximity of Atlantic City to all the big central and western cities, by reason of the excellent through train service of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, makes it the resort of the masses. Tickets will be available on all regular trains, and will be good for return twelve days, including date of sale, thus giving ample time for an enjoyable outing. Stop-over within limit of ticket will be allowed at Philadelphia, Pa., and Washington, D. C., on return trip.

The Persians very seldom hang a man for crime. If he kills another he is fined $15 and allowed to go. If he kills ten or twelve and the people finally decide that he ought to be put out of the way he is hanged. But he is not hanged as they hang men in this country. He is hanged by the feet and a heavy weight is tied to his head. Then he is allowed to die.

A fire occurred recently in San Francisco which mystified the occupants. It was discovered that Mrs. Wohrden had left a pair of eyeglasses and a newspaper lying on a bed in the full glare on the afternoon sun, and it is believed that the sun's rays shining through the lenses set fire to the newspaper.

As a result of the lawless proceedings of the vigilance committees in endeavoring to deport miners and their sympathizers from Colorado since the withdrawal of the troops a strong sentiment has been growing against such action. There is a movement on foot to demand a trial for all persons before they are driven out of a community. The warning given to a minister to leave the State because he had denounced the lawless acts of the vigilance committees shows how much need there is for the suppression of the latter. The time has fully arrived when justice should be permitted to take its ordinary course in Colorado.

There is every evidence that the Republicans will fail this year in their well-devised plans of collecting great campaign funds from manufacturers, capitalist syndicates and the trusts, and will be compelled to fall back on assessments on Federal office-holders, of whom there are probably a quarter of a million in the various departments of Government employ. It was this species of campaign piracy against which Mr. Roosevelt declaimed with so much feeling when he was civil service commissioner. It will be recalled with effect as the campaign progresses. It will also soon be in evidence that Mr. Roosevelt will display his characteristic inconsistency when the violation of the civil service laws means the acquisition of campaign funds for his own election.

IN TAMMANY'S HANDS

The Fight Will Be Left in New York City.

New York, Aug. 16.—The Democratic national headquarters have been opened in the Century building.

"The Democratic State Committee will get down to work today," said Thomas Taggart, chairman of the National committee, when he appeared at national headquarters at 7 o'clock this morning. The Democratic State Committee did get down to work and it got down to work with a will, as did the national body.

The National committee force which has been in cramped quarters at the Hoffman House, was all at work and the business of campaign organization went forward notwithstanding the confusion. The new quarters are at No. 1 West Thirty-fourth street. At a conference between Chairman Cord Meyer, of the New York Democratic State Committee, and Delancey Nicoll, vice chairman of the National Committee, today, an understanding was reached regarding the New York State campaign. It was decided that the National Committee would not interfere with the State Committee in the state, and neither National or State Committee will take up any work in New York City and Brooklyn, where the campaign will be conducted by the regular Democratic organization. The Democratic national managers say that they are convinced the situation in Greater New York is in the best possible shape for a larger vote and larger majorities than ever before. The national managers will look to the city organization to maintain this condition of affairs.

VAST DIFFERENCE

Between the Two Men Representing the Two Great Parties.

(New York Times.)

The Republican party has never been more faithful to its historic principles of centralized government and loose construction than since Theodore Roosevelt became President. Mr. Roosevelt is the government in a larger and truer sense than has been the case within the memory even of ex-Senator Henry C. Davis. Cannot anybody see that the course of the Republican party and of the national government would have been very different if President McKinley had lived, or if any other than Mr. Roosevelt had been in that office? As for that constitution, it is true beyond the possibility of successful contradiction that President Roosevelt disregarded it, overrode it when he made war on the Republic of Colombia without the authority of congress. It would be impossible to construe that venerable instrument more loosely.

It is to the law, to the people, to the lighted public sentiment, that Judge Parker would look for the forces that shape and guide our national career. Mr. Roosevelt looks to himself and to deferred reference to the nation's legislators, and, notably in this campaign or two, with casual and paucity, to the sentiment of his party. There is a vast difference between the two theories between the two men.

Between these theories and these men the American people are to make their choice. It does not make so much difference to Judge Parker whether he and his theories be chosen, but in our judgment it does make a difference to the American people. It is they who are really on trial. If the American nation had the mind of a butcher boy on an annual picnic day, we should expect from it no very hearty approval of Judge Parker's speech. But can it be possible that sober-minded Americans, that those among us who have viewed with misgiving the superabundant activities and overflowing spirits of the present administration, will pass this utterance by without coming at its grave meaning? Is there or is there not, in these United States of America an "enlightened public sentiment?"

Parker's Vote for Bryan.

Terre Haute, Ind., Aug. 16.—John E. Lamb, who was chairman of the Indiana delegation to the St. Louis convention, says that when he told Judge Parker that a Terre Haute banker had said the only thing he had against the candidate was his vote for Bryan, Judge Parker remarked: "Tell him if I had not voted for Mr. Bryan he would not be able to vote for me for President."

Odell Sounds Alarm.

New York, August 15.—Governor Odell has warned his lieutenants in this city that a repetition of the 122-996 Democratic plurality of 1902 here will defeat Roosevelt in his home state. He has directed that they do their utmost to hold the Parker plurality below 100,000 and has warned them if they fail the 39 New York Electoral votes will be cast for the Democratic ticket.

PARAMOUNT ISSUE

Is the Personality and Record of Theodore Roosevelt—He Is "It"—His Domination, Usurpation and Extravagance.

Washington, Aug. 16.—It is the consensus of opinion among the leaders of the Democratic party here, that the paramount issue in this campaign is the personality and the record of Theodore Roosevelt. He is "It." He is the "whole cheese." He dominates the Republican party and bestrides it like a colossus. Let us see if the record he has made will bear out the assertion:

More absolutely than any of his predecessors in office ever did, he procured his own nomination. He dictated the platform. He edited the nominating speeches. He appointed the campaign manager. He moved his cabinet officers like pawns to meet the exigencies of his game of politics. By an act of Executive usurpation he added many thousands of pensioners to a roll already containing a million names, in order to make votes for himself—the first open use ever made of the National Treasury as a party's campaign chest.

He has glorified war and threatened the future peace of the country by proposing a bullying overlordship of the other countries in this hemisphere and offering to constitute the United States the Constable and Collector for Europe in the rotten and irresponsible states of Central and South America.

He has, by his recommendations to Congress and his signature to its extravagances, increased the national expenditures during his term to more than $2,500,000,000—an excess of $211,600,000 over the expenditures during President McKinley's term (which included the expenses of the war with Spain), and exceeded the cost of President Cleveland's second term by $880,000,000.

He and the Congress of his party have converted a surplus of $80,000,000 in 1899 into a deficit of more than $40,000,000 for the fiscal year just closed. This extravagance is encouraged, and in fact made inevitable, by the high tariff and the policies of war and imperialism of which he is the most strenuous champion. The greater the revenue from customs the greater the temptation for lavish expenditures. The more colonies and dependencies we have the greater the need of more warships, more fortifications, more coal stations, more soldiers. Every high protectionist is a jingo and every jingo a high protectionist. These cardinal features of the Republican policy are interrelated and independent. They stand to each other in the relation of cause and effect.

In view of this surpassing record of extravagance, it is perhaps not strange but will be regarded by the taxpayers as significant, that the words "economy," "retrenchment" and "reform," once the rule of the nation and the shibboleth of statesmen, do not once appear in his entire speech of acceptance—not once!

NEW YORK LAWYERS

Perfect an Organization to Oppose the Election of Roosevelt.

New York, Aug. 16.—The Parker Constitution club, composed of members of the bar of New York City, has been formed here with the following officers:

President, James C. Carter; vice presidents, Wheeler H. J. Peckham, John E. Parsons, Joseph Laroque and John G. Carlisle; secretary, William E. Curtis; executive committee, Wm. B. Hornblower, Francis Lynde Stetson, John G. Milburn, Howard Taylor and James W. Gerard. In a statement the following are given as the objects of the club:

"The object of the club is to advance the cause of Constitutional Government, Civic Freedom and Adherence to Law, through the election of Alton B. Parker to the Presidency of the United States."

The statement also criticizes President Roosevelt, saying that he has "set up a policy of autocratic force and has shown that a President who has the will to usurp legislative functions and to exalt the power of the Executive above the constitution and commit our nation to violations of international justice easily finds a way."

NOTICE

To Central Committeemen Regarding Nominations in Townships to Be Made.

Under the election laws, every incorporated village of 50 or more voters must hold a nomination for their officers in said village.

The Democratic Executive committee has just sent notices to the Central committeemen of the several townships in Licking county asking them to take such immediate steps as may be necessary to arrange time and place and other necessary details for holding a nomination for the purpose of naming candidates for all the township offices to be filled at the coming fall election. The committeemen are advised to hold the nominations in the same manner as has been customary. They are requested to see that proper blank certificates of nomination are obtained from the Democratic Executive committee immediately preceding the time set for the nomination.

OHIO BRIEFS

HENRY KNAPP IS ACCUSED OF A MURDER AT MACK

Killed By Lightning—Dr. Smead Elect—Ballplayer Killed—Woman's Suicide—Buckeye News

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 16.—George Bacon of Mack, O., died at the hospital here, and Henry Knapp is held for his murder. They were rivals in attentions to Miss Lelia Peak. Bacon escorted her to a picnic last Saturday where Knapp annoyed them repeatedly. Knapp followed them home and shot Bacon just as the couple reached the Peak country homestead.

Born In Ohio.

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 16.—Rev. Isaac N. Dalby, pastor of the West Avenue Methodist church, died here after a long illness, at the age of 57 years. He was born at Harrisburg, O., educated at Oberlin college and a graduate of the medical department of Wooster university, Cleveland, O.

Kicked by a Horse.

Massillon, O., Aug. 16.—While trying to remove the horses from his barn, which was struck by lightning and burned to the ground, John Horst of East Greenville, was kicked by one of the animals and will die. Property loss, $2,000.

Struck by Lightning.

Willoughby, O., Aug. 16.—Lightning twice struck on the Temple Hill in Kirklund, O., during the storm. Both times the temple was damaged. The roof and belfry of the historic Mormon temple took fire, but was extinguished with loss of $200.

Smead Re-elected.

Columbus, Aug. 16.—Rev. Dr. George L. Smead was re-elected superintendent of the state school for the education of the blind. The election was not for a full term, but holds good until the close of the coming school year, in June, 1905.

Poor Health.

Marietta, O., Aug. 16.—Jacob Schulteis, a well-to-do farmer of Newell Run, near this place, shot himself, dying shortly afterwards. Despondency over continued poor health is the supposed cause.

Killed by Pitched Ball.

Port Clinton, O., Aug. 16.—Peter Larkins in a baseball game at Limestone, was almost instantly killed by a pitched ball. He was at the bat and was struck behind the ear.

Tired of Life.

Warren, O., Aug. 16.—Miss Rose Gilder of Cortland, O., committed suicide by hanging herself. She was 65 years of age. Despondency is the supposed cause.

Accused of Uxoricide.

New London, Mo., Aug. 16.—Dr. Jones Watson, the death of whose wife July 5 was investigated by a coroner's jury, was arrested on a charge of murdering his wife. John J. Suter of Palmyra, father of Mrs. Watson, made the affidavit. Dr. Watson carried insurance amounting to $30,000 on the life of his wife. In an alleged runaway near New London, Watson asserted that she was thrown from the buggy into Salt river, at the edge of which she was found.

Camp Transferred.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 16.—A simple ceremony—the formal transfer of Camp Marion E. Taylor from the local executive committee, which has placed it in readiness, to the Knights of Pythias for whom it was prepared—marked the formal opening of this organization's biennial convocation of 1904. The exercises occurred in the presence of about 10,000 people. Marion E. Taylor, chairman of the executive committee on arrangements, formally presented the tented city, which bears his name, to Tracy R. Bangs, supreme chancellor of the Knights, who turned the camp over to General James R. Carnahan of Indianapolis, commanding the Uniform rank, the general speaking briefly in acknowledgment.

Pact of Indiana Populists.

Indianapolis, Aug. 16.—The two branches of the Populist party in Indiana have entered into a peace agreement. By virtue of this agreement the two state chairmen pledge themselves to work together in the present campaign, to follow out whatever policy may be outlined by J. H. Ferris of Joliet, Ill., Populist national chairman, and to accept his decisions as final. It is also a part of the agreement that Ferris shall select the date for the Indiana Populist state convention for the nomination of a state ticket and the adoption of a state platform.

Fiercest of Island Tribes.

St. Louis, Aug. 16.—The Bagobos from the Island of Mindanao, Philippine islands, who have been held in quarantine since their arrival in St. Louis, arrived at the World's fair grounds and are now at work on their village in the Philippine section. In some ways they are the most primitive as well as the fiercest of the island races. The Bagobos are rapidly becoming extinct, there being but about 5,000 of them now alive.

Boy's Terrible Crime.

Plattsburg, Mo., Aug. 16.—Lafayette W. Jones, a wealthy farmer living 10 miles west of here, was shot and killed by his 15-year-old son Hugh. Because he was not allowed to drive the family horse, the boy with a loaded shotgun lay in wait for his father and shot him as he passed. Young Jones then reloaded the gun and fired again at the prostrate form of his father. The boy was brought to this city and placed in jail.

The Best Whiskey Made In Kentucky.

EDGEWOOD BOTTLED IN BOND

When a distiller takes a drink, he gets it out of the original barrel and Uncle Sam thinks you should have the same privilege. He makes it possible for you to get it by having it bottled under his own supervision and puts a little Green Government Stamp over the cork to GUARANTEE that it is the same. He also tells you when it was made, where it was made, and when it was bottled. Isn't that the kind of whiskey you want to buy for yourself and family? Keep a bottle in the house for medicinal purposes. Have your dealer show you the little government stamp on the cork, and if he can't write us and we'll show you how to get it.

Cured of Asthma

After 35 years of suffering, it will be gratifying to Asthmatic readers to learn that an absolute cure has at last been discovered by Dr. Schiffmann. That the remedy is an effective one cannot be doubted after perusal of such testimony as that of C. W. Van Antwerp, Fulton, N. Y., who says: "Your remedy (Schiffmann's Asthma Cure) is the best I ever used. I bought a package of our druggist and tried it and one box entirely cured me of Asthma, and I have not had it since. I can now go to bed and sleep all night with perfect comfort, which I have not done before for 35 years and I thank you for the health that I now enjoy. I hope that you will publish this letter, that others may learn of its wonderful virtues." Sold by all druggists at 50c and $1.00. Send 2c stamp to Dr. E. England has for many years given prizes for the destruction of venomous serpents and dangerous wild beasts in India, but it does not seem to diminish the annual number of victims. In 1903 over twenty-three thousand persons were killed by snake bites, over a thousand by tigers and almost a thousand by bears, leopards and panthers, together a total of over twenty-five thousand victims.

SHUT OUT

WAS NEWARK IN THE GAME AT LANCASTER MONDAY.

Same Teams Play There Today and Tomorrow—Will Be Home on Thursday Afternoon.

Lancaster, O., Aug. 16.—The locals shut out the strong Newark team here yesterday afternoon, in a fast game. Locke, who was on the firing line for Lancaster, succeeded in keeping the hits so scattered that not a visitor scored. "Lefty" Snyder pitched for Newark. The score:

Hits—Newark 8, Lancaster 1. Errors—Newark 3, Lancaster 1. Batteries—Snyder and Snodgrass; Locke and Kunkle. Umpire—Farpey.

The same teams will play here today and tomorrow, and on Thursday and Friday the Newark team will play on its home ground with Zanesville.

ZANESVILLE WON.

Coshocton, O., Aug. 16.—In a featureless and runless game, so far as Coshocton was concerned, Zanesville won here, 5 to 0.

Gardner Won.

Butte, Mont., Aug. 16.—George Gardner defeated Jim Jeffords in the third round, knocking him out with a right swing to the jaw that laid the flesh open and sent the Californian reeling and spinning to the floor. Jeffords lay like one dead for several moments and was in his corner for about three minutes before he was able to comprehend anything. Jeffords was no match against the Lowell man's cleverness.

TO PAY PARTIAL DIVIDEND

Receiver Webb Receives Permission to Pay Ten Percent—Bank Receiver Stasel Given Instructions by the Court Tuesday.

The court of Common Pleas convened Tuesday morning with Judge Seward on the bench. The following business was transacted:

In the case of Lewis P. Schaus et al. vs. the Newark Savings Bank company the court ordered as follows: Receiver Stasel to sell the real estate, furniture and fixtures; and the creditors to present their claims within 60 days; also an order calling in all unpaid subscriptions on stock.

In the case of Charles W. Bourner vs. The Homestead Building and Savings Co., Receiver Webb was given permission to pay a dividend of 10 per cent on certificates of deposit and paid up stock. The receiver was also authorized to sell at private sale the mortgage assets and real estate at par, or to receive propositions to buy, and report to the court.

In the case of Jacob Kuhns, guardian, vs. Harvey Kagey et al., a judgment by default for plaintiff for $161, and interest, was taken against the defendants.

In the case of the Centerburg Building and Loan Association vs. Sarah Coble, the sale of property lately made by the sheriff was confirmed and deed and distribution ordered. A similar order was also taken in the case of A. R. Pound vs. Minnie Bell Pound, and in the case of The Mechanics Building and Loan Company vs. Mary White, et al.

In the case of the Mechanics Building and Loan Company vs. Eliza Cramer, the recent sale of property by the sheriff was set aside and leave was given to make Ollie and Harry Cramer, et al., parties defendant. Leave was given to file supplemental petition. B. G. Smythe was also appointed guardian ad litem for minor defendants in same case.

M. J. Merrill vs. Martha J. Sasser et al. Sale confirmed and deed and distribution ordered.

In the case of W. M. Beatty vs. B. M. East et al., the receiver, C. C. Forry, was ordered to pay a dividend of 80 per cent to the general creditors. Cynthia A. Wagner vs. B. N. Selgler, guardian, a conditional order of revivor against the administrator of the ward was granted.

Case No. 12742 of Cynthia A. Wagner vs. L. D. Kattles, a former sale of land by the sheriff was confirmed and a deed and distribution ordered.

C. B. Mocer vs. C. E. Weller; death of plaintiff suggested; conditional order of revivor allowed to issue for administrator, E. E. Penn.

In the case of David Ramey vs. Levi Albright; a judgment for all costs against the plaintiff was given.

Ellen Thomas vs. George Stinson, et al.; decree for plaintiff making injunction heretofore granted perpetual. Bond for appeal $50.

In the case of Rose Dolan vs. Mary Lewis et al.; a decree in favor of plaintiff was ordered.

In the case of Laura E. Jones vs. Alvah Jones for contempt of court, the writ heretofore allowed to issue against the defendant was dismissed.

In the case of Samuel Morris vs. The Newark Iron and Steel Company in which William E. Miller was heretofore appointed receiver, an order was entered commanding the receiver to make a report within 30 days. The court then adjourned sine die.

The September term begins September 13.

Cully of the United States navy, and Lieutenant De Guerville of the French navy, the only two naval attaches at Port Arthur, joined Rear Admiral Witthoft's squadron when it left the port Wednesday morning last. They joined the squadron there. They had presumably been on board the flagship Czarevitch. The absence of news as to their presence with Admiral Witthoft is taken to indicate that they remained on shore, and it is pointed out that it would be perfectly within the admiral's province to decline to take the attaches in case he considered the enterprise too hazardous and so as not to expose the representatives of neutral nations to danger.

Russian Survivors Landed.
Nagasaki, Aug. 16.—Six hundred survivors of the crew of the Russian cruiser Rurik which was sunk by Admiral Kamamura off Utsun, Korea, Sunday morning, have arrived at Sasebo. The Japanese hospital ship Saikio has also arrived at Sasebo with 75 Japanese wounded, including Imperial Prince Hirotsu Kwacko, who was slightly wounded in the naval engagement off Rurik island.

Japs Occupy New Positions.
Chefoo, Aug. 16.—Junks which arrived here, having left Port Arthur Aug. 12, brought reports that the Japanese occupied new positions on the day. The firing was heavy, but intermittent, and indicated that the assaults were being continued. The Russians at Port Arthur are reported to be downhearted.

Another Russian Warship Sunk.
Tokio, Aug. 16.—Admiral Togo reports that a vessel of the type of the protected cruiser Pallada was torpedoed and sunk in the engagement of Aug. 10.

AUDITORIUM

OPENING UNDER NEW MANAGERS A DISTINCT SUCCESS.

Vogel's Minstrels Made a Big Hit Monday Night—Some Changes At the Theater.

Messrs. Ernest T. Johnson and Charles E. Matthews, the new managers of the Auditorium, have made a splendid start and there is every reason to believe that the coming season at Newark's playhouse will be satisfactory to the public and to the trustees of the theatre.

As customary, the season was opened with a minstrel show, and in casting about for an opening attraction, the new management made a happy selection when it booked the Vogel minstrels. This popular company, bigger and better than ever, appeared at the Auditorium Monday night and gave the best minstrel performance seen here in many a day. Gorgeous stage settings, a splendid orchestra, good looking costumes, the latest and best songs and a line of jokes right from the factory together with a second part in which some marvelous features were introduced combined to make the Vogel show "the real thing."

Kneetzer, the master of ambidexterity, the marvelous Marseilles and the comic acrobatic barrel jumpers, the D'Elmars, each accomplished seemingly impossible feats.

Fred Russell had no trouble in tickling the risibilities of the audience, and Bowen's dancing specialty was first class. Mr. George Baker, the interlocutor, said just enough and said it well. Taken altogether the show was absolutely first class and may count on another good house when it returns to Newark. The Vogels are in Zanesville tonight and will be at Lancaster tomorrow.

Messrs. Johnson & Matthews have introduced a number of new features at the Auditorium, which the public will appreciate. They have arranged the sale of seats at the box office, they have established a gallery entrance and have posted conspicuous signs saying that hereafter at all entertainments the curtain will rise promptly at 8 o'clock. They showed right at the start that order will be maintained in the gallery. They have arranged to have drinking water passed to patrons of the house, and have secured a competent and obliging set of ushers.

Near 12 page programs liberally patronized by the advertisers announce a few of the strong attractions that have been booked, among them being: Nat Goodwin, without doubt the greatest high class comedian and portrayer of comedy sentiment on the American stage.

DeWolf Hopper, the peer of comic opera stars, appearing in a revival of Wang.

Thos. Jefferson, the true son of his father Joseph Jefferson.

Buster Brown, the leader among musical extravaganzas. The pick of the Lilliputians and a company of 50 people.

Wilton Lackaye in the "Pit." Blanche Walsh in Tolstol's great story, "The Resurrection."

Daniel Sully in "The Chief Justice." W. B. Patton, whose "Minister's Son" is considered one of the hits of the season.

Louise Beaton in a Jewish melodrama entitled "Rachael Goldstein."

Charles Manley in the beautiful pastoral play, "Down on the Farm."

Also a large number of hits such as "Flood Tide," "The Holy City," "Under Southern Skies," "The Strollers," "Miss Bob White," "Out of the Field," "A Chinese Honeymoon," etc.

The next show will be "Railroad Jack," matinee and night, Labor Day, September 5.

AT IDELWILDE PARK

A big Monday night audience assembled at Idlewild Casino to witness the second night's entertainment given by the high class vaudeville artists who have been engaged for this week by Manager W. D. Harris.

Every number on the program is a good one and the entire bill is calculated to please all classes of theatre-goers, because of its varied and artistic worth.

Prof. Will Davy again made his brilliant fire show Monday night and will each evening during the week.

CHAPTER VII.

ONCE out in the open air, Frances Wentworth came again into control of herself, ashamed that for the moment her emotions had overwhelmed her. She had no desire to re-enter Westminster hall even if the doorkeepers would have permitted her, so she wandered slowly back to the inn which was her temporary home. In the evening John Vollins came to see her and offered money, which she told him, she did not need. He gave some account of Pym's speech and said that the commons had not asked the lords for judgment, which was taken by Strafford and his friends as an indication that they knew the weakness of the evidence and feared the effect of his lordship's speech in his own defense.

The refusal to ask for judgment was regarded as a good omen, and for some days Frances felt the revival of hope, when she could forget the grim figure of John Pym, but the commons speedily disillusioned the Straffordian party. A bill of attainder was brought in, and they showed their determination to have the head of the unfortunate earl by act of parliament if not by legal procedure. At last the bill, passing its third reading, was sent up to the house of lords. There were many who said the lords would never assent to it; that the commons should have asked for judgment at the close of the trial; that if they could not hope to have the verdict as they wanted it then it was not likely the lords would allow themselves to be coerced by a side wind now. These predictions were quickly falsified. The lords gave their consent to the bill of attainder, and nothing stood between Strafford and the block but a scrawl from the king's pen.

The lords, it was said by those who defended them, had been coerced by the populace. The mob had gathered again and had clamored around the house of peers, crying for justice on Strafford. Now they transferred their loud throated exclamations to Whitehall, for success with the nobles fore-shadowed success with the king.

It was late on Saturday night when John Vollins made his way to the inn at some jeopardy to himself, for the streets were wild with joy at the action of the lords. He told Frances that her father's life depended solely on the firmness of the king. If Charles signed on Monday, Strafford was to be led to the block on Wednesday. Vollins was in deep gloom over the prospect. The earl, he said, had some time previously written to the king, absolving him from all his promises, offering his life freely if the taking of it would advantage his majesty in dealing with his obstreperous subjects.

"But the king is trebly perjured if he signs. He cannot sign," cried Frances. Vollins shook his head.

"If all the lords in England are held in terror by the people's clamor, and so let the greatest of their number slip through their fingers to the ax, how can one weak man be expected to withstand the concentration of the popular will brought against him? 'Tis blind-ed folly to look for it."

"But the people dare not coerce a king."

"Dare they not? Go down to Whitehall and you will find them doing it. This very day they have all but stormed the palace."

"I will see the king, throw myself at his feet and implore him to keep his word. I was present when he bade my father take this fateful journey to London and when he promised full protection. A king's word should stand against the world, for he is the source of truth and honor in a nation."

"You cannot get to see him. Every entrance to the palace is strongly guarded. Highly placed friends of my lord, friends when all others had fallen away from him, have sought admission to the royal presence in vain. He has refused to see the Earl of Bristol, whose son, Lord Digby, spoke out against the conclusiveness of the evidence, and his majesty has let it be spread abroad that he gives no approval of Lord Digby's plain words, and so the people cry 'God save the king' and revile Lord Digby."

The girl stood aghast at this intelligence, remembering the scene at the trial, when royalty in the person of Charles Stuart, and the people in the person of John Pym, opposed their wills to each other. Then royalty had faded from the sight of men, and the strong champion of the people held his ground alone and triumphant. "Trust in God and the king," wrote the prisoner. What a conjunction! Almighty power, and a bending reed! "Nevertheless, I will see the king," she said.

On Sunday the immensity of the swaying crowd, shouting and moving like a slow resistless flood through the streets, daunted her. There was no employment that day to keep any one within doors, and it seemed as if that labyrinth of human warrens called London had emptied itself into the narrow thoroughfares. She hesitated like a timid swimmer on the brink of a raging torrent, yet if she was to win access to the king she must trust herself to the current, which had this advantage—it set toward the direction in which she wished to go.

If the streets could be compared to sluggish streams, the broad avenue or square of Whitehall might be likened to the lake into which they emptied. It was a packed mass of humanity, surging to and fro, as if influenced by mysterious tides, but making no progress. Way through it in any given direction might well seem an impossibility, but an alert atom, by constantly watching opportunity, could edge here and there, through chance openings, and, by a constant devotion to a given direction, ultimately attain any chosen point.

Thus the girl, buffeted about, often well nigh exhausted and breathless, came by the entrance to the palace that stood next the banqueting house. The gates, however, were tightly closed and guarded on the outside by a double row of soldiery who stood the hustling of the mob with great good humor, being evidently cautioned not to exasperate the populace by any hostile act. The crowd itself seemed good natured enough, although constant fighting took place here and there along its choking surface, but the great bulk of those present appeared to be out on a larking holiday, although they all riotously lent breath to the unceasing roar, calling for justice on Strafford. Occasionally there were shouts for the king and demands that he should speak to them, but the windows of Whitehall palace were blank and gave no sign of human occupancy.

"NO, NO" GASPED CHARLES.

Suddenly Frances found herself in new danger through one of those unexplainable heaves of the many throated beast at whose mercy she stood.

"To the gates!" went up a shout. "We will make the king hear." And a great human wave, overwhelming the soldiers, struck against the shuddering portal. The mere pressure of the multitude was deadly and irresistible.

There were shrieks and appeals for forbearance, but the unreasonable mass behind pressed on, unheeding, cheering and shouting. A crash of rending timbers and the gates flew inward. Then the mob, as if frightened at what it had done, paused, giving the soldiers time to collect themselves and help the wounded. There was as yet no malice in the crush; it was more like a conglomeration of irresponsible children bent on mischief of any kind, but temporarily scared at the breaking of something.

This fact seemed to be recognized by a man in authority who came through the gate and with some difficulty secured a precarious footing on one of the stone pillars which stood in a row between the pathway and the road, thus giving him a position which towered over the heads of the assemblage. He held up a hand for a hearing, and the crowd cheered him, not in the least knowing who he was or why he was there. Comparative silence followed the cheer, and the nobleman spoke.

"My good people," he said, "there is little use in the breaking of gates that the king may hear you, for the king has heard and is taking the requests of his faithful subjects into his august consideration."

"Where is the king?" demanded an auditor.

"His majesty is in the banqueting house, where, as you know, he is in touch with his people. 'Tis a prayerful subject he has to meditate on, and I beg of you not to disturb his devotion by further."

"Is the queen at her devotions too? In that hall she began masked revels on a Sunday, and six good men were done to death for protesting against the desecration, each life more valuable than the wicked earls. Let the king say that he will sign, and we will disperse!"

These and other cries more or less to the purpose baffled the orator, and the air quivered with denunciations of Strafford. The man on the stone post had cast his eyes behind him several times, as if to see what progress was being made with the readjustment of the gate, and from this his hearers quickly divined that he was but deluding them to gain time, which was more than likely his purpose, so the shout went up to move through the breach and surround the hall. Meanwhile reinforcements had been summoned from within, and a hand to hand fight ensued with the encroachers.

Frances, panting and nigh worn out in the struggle, nevertheless saw her opportunity. There were few women in the throng and such as came near them the soldiers sought to protect. She attempted appeal to the officer, but that harassed dignitary could barken to none and thrust her rudely but effectively through the opening, saying: "You will find egress at one of the other gates. Take care of yourself. I cannot help you."

Breathing a sigh of thankfulness, she cowered and ran along the end of the banqueting hall, turned at the corner, then down the side, entering an archway that let her into a passage. She knew that she must turn to her right, but where after that she had not the slightest notion. The tumult at the gate was so frightful that she expected every moment to hear the victorious as-saulters at her heels. Her joy at finding herself thus unexpectedly within the precincts of the palace, unimpeded, caused her to overlook the fact that this was scarcely a propitious moment in which to implore the king to disregard the lusty giant rudely beating at his doors. A frightened waiting maid came hurrying along the corridor, and to her she directed inquiry regarding the entrance to the banqueting hall.

The king had reason for agitation greater than the surprise that had made breathing statues of those about him. The accents that disturbed him were the accents of Strafford himself, softened as they were by the lips that uttered them. The boldness of the address was Strafford's, and until he saw that a woman knelt before him it almost seemed that the dominant spirit of the prisoner had burst the bonds of the Tower and sped hither to reproach him for meditated treachery.

Frances, gathering breath, took advantage of the silence her sudden advent had caused.

"Why is Lord Strafford in a dungeon today? Because, trusting your word, he obeyed your command at Hampton. Why was he put on trial? Because faithfully he carried out his king's behests. Why was he condemned to death? Because he stood true to the king. If he deserve death, then so do you, for you are the master and he the servant. Has God-stricken you and your counselors with blindness that you cannot see in the destruction of Strafford the throwing away of the shield which guards your breast, leaving you naked to your enemies? Surrender bastion, and the castle falls."

"Heavens!" cried the quivering queen. "What country of the mad is this, where the meanness of subjects may so address a monarch! Strip the mantle from her back and scourge her rebellious flesh to the kennel whence she comes."

"No, no!" gasped Charles, staggering to his feet and sweeping with a gesture of his hand the documents which lay before him on the table, so that they fluttered to the floor. "She speaks the truth; happy the prince who hears it and heeds it. I have passed my word to Strafford, and it shall be kept. I will not sign—no, though the heavens fall. Rise, my girl! You have my promise—the promise of a Stuart—and it shall be fulfilled."

Charles graciously assisted the girl to her feet with the same courtesy he would have shown to the first lady of the court.

The rage of the queen now passed all bounds of restraint.

"And this before me, your wife! You weigh the word of this bedraggled creature of the streets above that of the royal house of France and queen of this turbulent realm. You deserve to be hoisted by your loathsome mob. Who is this woman?"

De Courcy whispered a word into her ear.

"What! The daughter of that profligate Strafford! To what a pass this Christian court has come!"

"'Tis true, 'tis true," murmured Charles, visibly quailing before the increasing wrath of his wife, adding in piteous appeal, "Have I not enough to bear without the quarreling of women?"

"The quarreling of women! Dare you couple me in the same breath with such as she? Is there none in my train to whip forth this impudent wench into the wretched rabble that has cast her into our presence. The quarreling of women! A slattern that wishes to divert from her reputed father's head to yours, the anger of the gutter. Listen to it, my lord. Listen to it."

All this was shrieked forth with gestures so rapid and amazing that the eye could scarce follow the motion of her hands. Now she flew to the window and fumbled with its fastening, too greatly excited to succeed with the opening. Several of the French galleants stumbled over each other in their haste to aid her, but the lady's impatience could not wait for them. She lifted her clinched hand and smote the diamond panes, which went shivering down beneath the force impact of the blow. Glass or lead or both cut the imperious hand and wrist, and the blood trickled down the fair rounded arm. The breach she made was like rectly plain; for, as they say—and who shall question the dictum of the church in such matters—you have two consciences, the conscience of the prince and the conscience of the man; and where the consciences come into conflict that of the prince must of necessity rule, as is the axiom in all civilized courts. Is it right that you, a king, should jeopardize yourself in a useless effort to save one condemned by his peers, because your private conscience as a man urges you to keep a promise which he himself has relieved you from, holding you guiltless before God and the nations, and further advised by these good men, lords of their church, that such action would not make toward peace of the realm. It is not a subject to be hesitated upon for a moment, the good of the ruler being paramount always."

"Oh, my lord, the king, listen not to such sophistry, be it from the lips of priest or woman! The given word is the man, and he stands or falls by it. If the forewarned peasant be a cringing craven, ten thousand times worse is the perjured prince. You pledged your faith to Lord Strafford, and now in his just heaven God demands the fulfillment of your word."

The disheveled girl had flung herself at the feet of the frightened monarch, who started back, gazing wildly about him, shaking as one struck with palsy, so startling and unexpected had been the interruption. Red anger flushed the face of the no less amazed queen, speechless with indignation at the words and the tone of them addressed to her exalted husband. The sage bishops were astounded at the lack of diplomacy on the part of the petitioner who had thus rudely thrown herself counter to the expressed wishes of the highest lady in the land, but Frances, with an instant intuition more subtle than theirs, saw that the queen was an enemy not to be enjayed by deference or flattery, so she determined that the war between them should be open and aboveboard.

The king had reason for agitation greater than the surprise that had made breathing statues of those about him. The accents that disturbed him were the accents of Strafford himself, softened as they were by the lips that uttered them. The boldness of the address was Strafford's, and until he saw that a woman knelt before him it almost seemed that the dominant spirit of the prisoner had burst the bonds of the Tower and sped hither to reproach him for meditated treachery.

A SPY'S CLOSE CALL.

Rescued From Impending Death by a Clever Newspaper Race.

On the battlefield of Antietam Mr. McClure met General William J. Palmer, then a captain, and strongly urged him not to continue his movements as a spy after Lee had crossed into Virginia, but the gallant young soldier gave no promise as to what he would be likely to do, and the very first night after Lee crossed the Potomac he was again in Lee's camp and brought back important information to General McClellan.

Again he returned and entered the Confederate lines, and when he did not report after a week it was assumed that he had been captured and would probably be executed as a spy. He had been captured, was tried and condemned as a spy and sentenced to be executed, but he was saved by a clever newspaper device determined upon after a conference in Philadelphia between President J. Edgar Thomson of the Pennsylvania railroad, Colonel Scott and Mr. McClure. Thomson took special interest in Palmer, as he had been his secretary, and was much attached to him.

It was decided that Washington dispatches should be prepared for all of the Philadelphia morning papers announcing the arrival at the capital of Captain William J. Palmer, stating in what particular lines of the enemy he had operated, and adding that he had brought much important information that could not be given to the public at that time. These dispatches appeared next morning in all the Philadelphia papers, prominently displayed, and of course reached the southern lines within forty-eight hours.

The result was that Captain Palmer's identity was never established in Richmond, and his execution was thus suspended. In a little while, when some prisoners had been exchanged, there was a vacancy made in the list of the exchanged men by death. Palmer's friends had him take the place and name of the dead soldier, and he thus escaped and returned to the service.

Candy.

"The talk about adulterated candies," said a manufacturer, "is nonsense. There is a national organization of confectionery manufacturers which makes a business of investigating all reports of poisoning from eating candy and has succeeded in exploding most of such rumors. When a child is hungry it will fill up on almost anything it can get hold of—green apples, for instance, or even gravel or grass. It gets sick, and the mother, knowing it had eaten candy that day, spreads the report that the sweets were poisoned. The organization looks into every such case it hears about and finds out the truth. Competition is too strong for any concern to try to sell adulterated goods. The firm's competitors would immediately analyze the piece which is sold suspiciously cheap, and if it contained injurious ingredients would not be slow in proclaiming the fact. Good business principles demand honesty in the manufacture of candies."—Milwaukee Wisconsin.

His Wish.

A wicked story is told about two partners who respected each other's business ability, but who hated each other cordially. To one of them came a fairy saying that he could have any boon he desired and whatever he had his partner should have in double portion. Naturally his first wish was for a barrel of money. "All right," said the fairy, "but your partner will get two barrels on that wish." "Stop a little," said the first. "Perhaps you'd better not give me a barrel of money. I'd rather you would make me totally blind in one eye."

Korean Customs.

According to the Rev. C. F. Collier, an English missionary, the Korean "never cuts his hair or beard. To do so is considered a mark of dishonor to his parents, whom he strongly reveres. Any hairs that may happen to come out and even the parings of his finger nails are carefully saved and put into the coffin with him in order that he may go back to Mother Earth intact."

PLAYS AND PLAYERS.

Mme. Aino Aekte has been engaged by Heinrich Corried for next season.

Corinne, instead of Josephine Hall, is to be starred in "A China Doll" by Alfred E. Aaron.

Fay Templeton has a new song, "Leave It to Bill." She tried it on at the Aerial gardens, New York, recently, and it made a hit.

Klaw & Erlanger will bring over here Owen Hall's musical farce "Sergeant Brue," which is a midsummer success at the Strand theater, London. Grace George is summing at Allenhurst, N. J., where she has a delightful cottage and a well equipped stable that enables her to gratify her passion for horseback riding.

Gus Weinberg, who plays Bompoka, the merry king in "Isle of Spice," at Boston, was formerly the leading comedian of the Dearborn theater stock company in Chicago.

Mabel Tallaferra of the "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" cast was notified recently that she had been selected to be the leading woman of the Italian company which will support Signor Erneste Novelli.

ENGLISH ETCHINGS.

The purest water in Britain is that of Loch Katrine.

London has the largest proportion of insane of any English city, the number being 261 per 100,000. Nottingham is a close second, with 212 per 100,000.

The late Duke of Cambridge's silver, recently sold at auction in London, weighed more than a ton. That does not include articles made partly of silver, such as two silver-handled knives.

On a recent Sunday morning in ten city of London churches, which, if sold, would produce half a million of money, there were, including children, only 213 worshippers, although they provide accommodation for nearly 4,000 and possess an income of £5,700 a year.

Take Courage!

If you are naturally not as strong as your more fortunate sisters, and for this reason experience dread rather than joy at the prospect of becoming a mother, take courage and assurance from this fact. Mother's Friend is meant for you, and by its use you may pass through that glorious martyrdom which is yours by divine right with no more discomfort than that experienced by those who by nature are possibly more adapted for the role of motherhood.

MOTHER'S FRIEND

is a liniment of proven merit, and its great worth can be no better attested to than by the countless strong and healthy children who through its kindly offices have entered this world unhandicapped by any deformity or weakness. It is a liniment which by external application acts upon the abdominal muscles and permits of a painless parturition.

CITY COUNCIL

A FAULTY PAVING ORDINANCE IS REPEALED.

Council Orders Day and Night Watchmen at Union Street Crossing Other Business.

The city council met in regular session Monday evening with President Rosell in the chair and members present as follows: Messrs. Baker, Conrad, Charles Jones, Miller, Moser and Hunter.

The street committee reported that no funds were available for the opening of Burt avenue, but recommended a sanitary sewer on Gay street.

Solicitor Phil D. Smythe suggested that the ordinance to improve Locust street be repealed as it was not done in a proper manner. This ordinance was to pave Locust street.

A protest from property owners on Oakwood avenue, against the construction of a tile sewer on said street was read by Clerk Maurath, and received and filed.

An ordinance was read for the third time to borrow money and issue bonds in the sum of $7,500 for the improvement of Granville street from Eddy to Eleventh streets, by paving; passed.

An ordinance was read for the third time requiring the B. & O. and P. & N. to maintain a day and night watchman at the Union street crossing; passed.

The ordinance making it a misdemeanor to sprinkle the streets so as to make them muddy was passed, 5 yeas, 2 nays.

An ordinance to appropriate $1,650 for the deputy state supervisors of elections for the fiscal half year, ending December 31, was read for the second time; referred to finance committee.

Resolutions.

Mr. Carlile—To construct a 24-inch tile sewer on Oakwood avenue from Maiden to East Main streets, read for the second time.

Mr. Carlile—To pave Woods avenue from Granville street to north line of lot 32; read for the second time.

Mr. Conrad—That certain property owners on Penney avenue be notified to construct sidewalks; adopted.

Judge Hunter said that an ordinance should be introduced repealing the Locust street improvement ordinance, and this was done and the measure was passed under a suspension of the rules.

WEDDING

Of Miss Cora Roberts and Mr. Guy Davenport at the Roberts Home in Melgen.

Melgen, O., Aug. 16.—One of the prettiest home wedding that has taken place in this vicinity for some time, was that of Sunday morning at the residence of Mr. J. W. Roberts of Melgen, Ohio. The contracting parties were Miss Cora Roberts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Roberts, and Mr. Guy S. Davenport, a machinist of Fainted Post, New York.

While the wedding march was being played by Miss Idella Roberts, a sister of the bride, the bridal party marched to the spacious west parlor, where the ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Dillon of Coshocton, in the presence of a few of the closest friends and relatives of the bride.

The bride was handsomely attired in rose-colored silk and carried a bouquet of beautiful red roses. The bride received many useful presents, among them being a handsome Bible presented to the bride, by her mother.

The happy couple left Sabbath evening for a short wedding trip, after which they will reside at Ravigville, O., where the groom is employed as foreman of the Ravig machine shops. The young couple have the best wishes of their many friends here for a future of usefulness and happiness.

A TRADE

THAT WAS NOT CARRIED OUT BY MR. COXEY

According to John Miles, of Hanover—A Watch to Be Exchanged For a Horse.

Mr. John Miles of Hanover, was in town Tuesday looking for a man named Coxey, who, he said, swindled him out of a watch a few days ago. He says that he met Coxey and agreed to trade a watch for a horse; that he gave Coxey the watch and was to come back later in the day for the horse. He says that when he went to Coxey's home for the horse his wife told him that the horse was not there, and said that her husband had sold it to a gypsy. Mr. Miles says that his son came to the city on Monday and demanded the watch of Coxey, but that he refused to give it up. Miles notified the police of the matter and an effort will be made to recover the watch.

KNAPP

Tried to Kill Cellmate, It Is Alleged—He Dies Wednesday Night.

Columbus, Aug. 16.—Officials at the penitentiary are investigating a story to the effect that Alfred Knapp, the multi-wife murderer from Hamilton, tried to kill his cellmate, Bill Nichols, one of his cellmates in the annex in the Ohio penitentiary. Wednesday night is the date set for Knapp's execution.

The story goes that yesterday "Dutch" Miller, an inmate, was awakened by screams from Nichols, who cried, "For God's sake take Knapp off; he is trying to choke me." "Dutch" leaped from his bed, and sure enough, Knapp was up. Nichols explained that he was awakened by a choking sensation and discovered Knapp's hands at his throat.

The guard hurriedly entered the cage and learned the facts as stated. Knapp said he was sick and just got out of the bed to go to the lavatory, when he bumped against Nichols' bed. He declares that he never laid his hands on Nichols.

Knapp has been closely watched by his fellow prisoners, and several of them have taken an oath to add more crime to their records if he ever laid his hands on them.

Knapp will go to the chair in scheduled time Wednesday night, as Warden Hershey has been informed by his attorney, Thomas Darby, that since all has been done for his client along the legal line he does not intend requesting the Governor to interfere.

There is in Paris a new school of psychology to investigate such questions as mind reading, mental suggestion at a distance, clairvoyance, presentiments, automatic writing, double personality, etc. This school has for its members medical men almost entirely.

BIG PICNIC

WILL BE HELD FRIDAY BY THE A. O. U. W. MEMBERS

Columbus, Zanesville, Marion and Other Towns Will Send Delegations to Idlewild Park That Day.

A big picnic with big attractions and a big crowd, will be the order of things next Friday, August 19, at Idlewild Park. A motorcycle race at 1:30 with three big prizes offered will be one of the biggest racing events of the season, while the ball game between Zanesville, Moguls and Idlewild will be hotly contested and will prove a big drawing card.

A strong bill at Idlewild Casino, and the sensational slide down a high wire into the lake together with dancing in the pavilion, will make the evening's entertainment very interesting and will round out the day's pleasures in an appropriate manner.

Committees have been appointed and everything pertaining to the pleasure of all those in attendance at this picnic will be looked after.

Large crowds are coming from Zanesville, Columbus, Marion and other points to celebrate A. O. U. W. day.

NEW GAS WELL ON JONES FARM IS A GUSHER

Company is About to Sink Five More Wells.

Jones Well, Which Is Near the Dry Hole on the Price Place, Said to Produce 7,000,000 Feet.

Union Station, Aug. 16.—The new gas well which was drilled in by the Columbus Natural Gas company on the Thomas P. Jones farm, near Union Station, last Friday, has proved to be a gusher.

The workmen had considerable difficulty in getting it under control and finally succeeded after having the tubing blown out through the top of the derrick.

This well is located about a half mile from a dry hole which was drilled some time ago on the Carl I. Price farm, which is located about 80 rods from the Jones farm. The Columbus company has erected three rigs and have two more ready at the station to erect.

This well is said to be producing about seven million cubic feet of gas a day. It now looks as if the Homer field will have a strong competitor in the near future.

DRESDEN

Will Probably Vote on the Liquor Question Early in September—Now "Wet."

To be wet or dry? That is the question that soon will be agitating the minds of Dresden residents.

Now the ministers of Dresden are circulating a petition. They must secure 150 signers, 40 per cent of the entire voters of the town, before they can request the town council to grant them the privilege of holding a special election to vote on the "wet" and "dry" question.

Dresden has always been "wet." Two years ago a local option election was held. Then the "wets" won by 15 votes. There are six saloons in northern Muskingum county's metropolis, it is hoped that the local option election can be held early in September.

France has about one hundred and thirty thousand miles of macadam roads, and these roads are maintained in perpetually good condition at a yearly expense of about forty-eight cents for each inhabitant.

The Death Penalty.

A little thing sometimes results in death. Thus a mere scratch, insignificant cuts or puny boils have been the death penalty. It is wise to have Bucklen's Arnica Salve ever handy. It's the best salve on earth and will prevent fatigue, when burns, sores, ulcers and piles threaten. Only 25c, at Hall's drugstore.

GRANVILLE

Work on Denison University's Gymnasium Is Progressing and Will Soon Be Finished—Personals

Granville, Aug. 16.—Work on the new gymnasium is rapidly progressing. A large force of men is engaged at work on the building, and it is hoped to have the same enclosed in a short time. When completed, this will be one of the handsomest buildings belonging to the college.

Paul Orcutt left Wednesday evening for St. Louis to attend the World's Fair for a short time.

Quite a number of transfers of real estate have been made here of late, which indicates that there is something doing in the village.

Miss Grace Chamberlin has returned home from Geneva, where she has been visiting her uncle for some time.

Jamie Fernald is ill at his home on Plum street.

Mrs. Baldwin and daughter, Alice, of Columbus, are visiting friends in the village for a few days.

Mrs. Glen and daughter, Miss Helen, of Columbus, are among the visitors in the village.

Misses Bessie Howe and Rachel Jones are visiting Miss Bernice Black at her home in Columbus, for a few days.

FAST CARS

BEGIN SERVICE ON INTERURBAN LINE WEDNESDAY.

Trip From Newark to Columbus in Ninety Minutes and to Zanesville in One Hour.

The new time table on the C. B. L. & N. and C. N. & Z. roads goes into effect Wednesday morning. The car leaving Zanesville at 7 a. m. and 1 p. m. and leaving Columbus at 10 a. m. and 4 p. m. will make the new fast runs that will be inaugurated. This is just half of the fast runs, the others being put on when the new palaces cars arrive. The time between Columbus and Zanesville is 2 hours and a half. These fast cars west bound leave Newark at 8 a. m. and 2 p. m., making the run to Columbus in one hour and thirty minutes. The east bound cars leave Newark at 11:30 a. m. and 5:30 p. m., making the run to Zanesville in one hour.

The installation of this fast service does not in any way interfere with the regular hourly service that has heretofore been maintained, except that cars leave Zanesville at 39 minutes after the hour instead of 30 minutes.

The Newark Warehouse and Storage Company beg to advise the public and our patrons that we have complied in every way with all requirements of the Draymen's Union and made application for membership, and paid dues for each of our drivers. We are now told that they were denied membership because they failed to attend a meeting of the union held on Thursday evening, August 13, 1914. They failed to give our drivers notice of this meeting or to advise them that it was necessary for them to be present, and they had no knowledge of such meeting. We intend to comply with union rules in every respect and to become members of same in spite of a few "sore-heads" who are endeavoring to act "lirty" in the matter.

Respectfully,

NEWARK WAREHOUSE AND STORAGE COMPANY. 8-12-3t

NOTICE TO BUSINESS MEN AND ORGANIZED LABOR.

The statements made by the Newark Warehouse and Storage company are all false and untrue. They have not complied in any way with the Draymen's Union. One of their drivers has been suspended and expelled for the nonpayment of dues. The other one was recommended and endorsed by one of the proprietors, John A. Chilcote. The only "sore-head" in the matter is one of the firm, who was on the arbitration committee with the stone and brickmasons strike of last summer, Ben B. Jones.

We again beg to say that it is not a union firm and not employing union men. Respectfully submitted, DRAYMEN AND EXPRESSMEN'S LOCAL UNION, NO. 101, Newark, Ohio. 8-16-41t

An Italian engineer now residing at Brussels had, it is said, invented an instrument which he calls the tele-scriptograph, and which will produce in print all conversations held over the telephone. If he has really done this the doom of the typewriter has been sealed, since one would then have only to talk into a machine which would grind out the typewritten letters as fast as they were dictated.

THE PEOPLE ALL

In Chorus Cried, Give Us Newbro's Herpicide.

This word of late has been in everyone's mouth, and many are wondering what the word signifies, though no one has yet been found, who will deny that NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE does the work. Well, for the information of thousands of people who like to know all about a good thing, we would say that HERPICIDE means a destroyer or killer of "Herpes." Now "Herpes" is the family name of a disease caused by various vegetable parasites. A similar microbe causes dandruff, itching scalp, and falling hair; this is the microbe that NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE promptly destroys; after which the hair grows. Sold by leading druggists, send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. C. T. Bricker, Special Agent.
